WORDS FROM THE PASTOR

Today begins a new Sunday School year. Dustin Parr will be assuming the job of Sunday School Superintendent. The most notable part of the job is reading the devotional before Sunday School, but it also includes notifying the teacher of the conclusion of time, checking on and closing down the educational building. Keeping up with the literature order needs of the teachers is also part of the need of supervision. Bro. LeeRoy was elected as his assistant. We thank these two men for their willingness to serve.

Also with the beginning of a new year, it is also the beginning of a new quarter of study. First, Second, Third John and Jude are the books being covered in the Adult class. Judy and Karen are still dealing with Old Testament characters and right now focused on Moses. We trust that all of us would consider the importance of in depth study in the educational hour.

This being the first Sunday of the month we will be enjoying fellowship around food following the AM services. There will be no evening service today.
